The Health Building Effects of Burke's Extract of COD LIVER OIL NOW IN TABLET FORM Combined With IRON To Make RICH RED BLOOD

In all medicine there is nothing like Cod Liver Oil. Nothing has ever been discovered that is "just as good." For nearly two centuries—ever since 1766—Cod Liver Oil has been healing the sick. It has proved itself to be the one dependable medicine for every race and every nation on the face of the earth. Hospitals and physicians the world over recommend and use it. No form of medicine has stood the test of time like Cod Liver Oil—it is the same today as it was 156 years ago, when its benefits first became generally known.

And now a remarkable new method has been perfected by which the famous health-building elements of Cod Liver Oil are extracted by a wonderful scientific process and presented in a small sugar coated tablet. Just think what this means! Thousands of pale, sickly, run-down people who could never take Cod Liver Oil because of its horrible, nauseous taste may now be built up and strengthened in a way they never dreamed possible.

Remember this name which has been given these new Cod Liver Oil tablets so that you may be sure to get the genuine. When you go to your druggist ask for Burke's Extract of COD LIVER OIL and IRON tablets. Be sure to include the word "IRON"—for that is an important ingredient in this new flesh-building and tonic prescription. IRON together with other recognized health-building ingredients has been combined in Burke's Extract of COD LIVER OIL and IRON Tablets so that pale, sickly people lacking in proper blood strength may be sure of plenty of rich, red blood which brings the snap and vigor that are so much a part of rugged, happy health.

When you feel the need of a tonic—something to build you up after a spell of sickness—or if you find that you don't weigh as much as you should, Burke's Extract of COD LIVER OIL and IRON Tablets will start you gaining in just a few days. For growing children who lack appetite or may be "spindling" and pale looking, put them on a daily treatment of these pleasant-to-take tablets and note the difference in the sturdy health gained within a week's time.

To Whiten "Off-Color" Teeth

and Firm Gums to healthy color, quickly, as dentists advise

HERE is a simple test that proves the truth of the recent dental statement that dull, "off-color" teeth can be lightened amazingly, even given dazzling whiteness.

In a few days you can work a great change in the color of your teeth. Can give them clear and charming gleam.

There is a new way in tooth and gum care. A way that removes the dingy film that clouds your teeth. A film that absorbs discolorations and keeps teeth dingy looking.

Just run your tongue across your teeth. And you will feel that film. It is the great enemy of pretty teeth and healthy gums.

It clings to the teeth, gets into crevices and stays. It forms a breeding place for germs. It lays your gums open to bacterial attack, your teeth open to decay. Those germs, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Old-time methods failed in successfully fighting film. So ugly teeth were common. You must remove it. Ordinary brushing won't do it satisfactorily. Under it are the clear, white teeth you envy in others.

Now modern science has perfected an effective film combatant, called Pepsodent. It acts to curdle film, then remove it. It firms and protects gums; beautifies teeth quickly and correctly.

Humble Clam Uses

Tools to Build Home

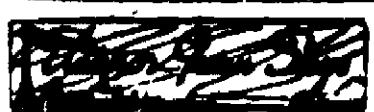

The use of tools by so lowly a creature as a clam is described by Dr. D. T. Marshall in Long Island Life.

There is a species of clam called a piddock, which bores holes in hard clay and soft rock and spends its life in the cavity so made. The piddock burrows its home in the rock by constantly turning its raspy shell in the cavity. This explanation is all very well after the hole is started, but how about the beginning of the hole before the piddock could get in to turn around?

The piddock begins the hole by rubbing the surface with its foot, or, as one may so accurately describe it, with its hand, in which it holds a handful of sand grains. Is not this just as much making use of a tool as the action of the housewife who uses a handful of sand to scour a pot?

STURDY OUTDOOR CLOTHES ARE AUTUMNAL IN TINT AND SLIM IN SILHOUETTE.

Women who affect sports clothes—a constantly growing number, incidentally—have a penchant for whites, even for autumn. At polo and tennis events, there are always white soft wool coats sprinkled through the gallery, and some light tones such as banana; yet the background for these and even for the vivid reds, which are now important, tones in with the landscape and is, in other words, brown and ruddy.

Tokay is one of the new shades, and all wine reds must be included with russets, which are very much in evidence; and, of course, there are greens, since the world at large has taken to green in one of its myriads of tones.

Smart gowns viewed from the ground are as brown as the leaves that strew the path, and much the same color range. Shoes in combination of two tones of brown are very popular, and, to a lesser degree, those which combined tan with black or black with gray. Straps, or more often a single strap or a buckle—sometimes of braided kid—are accepted as in perfect accord with the day.

Tweeds have met with enthusiastic response and have brought in their wake interest in novelty wools, especially with an all-over design. While the majority of the woolen costumes seen are in jumper effects, the sketch indicates that there are other ways of making up wool and that fine pleating need not be eschewed—a nut brown diagonal is the material chosen. The hat matches, of course, and is of velvet this time; an envelope purse of antelope and trim kid shoes make this costume in perfect accord, and assure one that its wearer knows the significance of the word "chic." Why Don't They?

She is a business woman, a Indianapolis and in the splinter class, too. And she resents the pitying way people have of saying "old maid" when they speak of some one in her class.

The other evening the man before her was introduced as "the town's most popular bachelor."

Then she arose. "I'm not married either," she said, "but when you speak of me as an old maid I want you to give it the same spicy twist as you do 'bachelor' when you speak of that unmarried man."

Others Had Wondered

Little Margie was unusually silent, her mind deep in the realms of fancy. Finally she turned to her mother, who was seated on the sofa with a rather sad expression on her face, and asked: "Say, mother, how did you come to marry papa?"

Margie's mother looked at her daughter with a wistful smile and replied: "My dear child, is that beginning to astonish you, too?"

Don't put off hearing The New Orthophonic Victrola

PEOPLE have never heard anything like it. You have never. There has never been anything like it. There is nothing to compare with it. That is why you should hear it.

It is here. It is an entirely new instrument. New in principle, new in construction, new patents, new cabinets.

JOHN PHILIP SOUSA, the March King, heard the new Orthophonic Victrola play a march. He was enthusiastic. "Why gentlemen," he said, "that's a band!" It was the highest tribute he could have paid.

MME. ERNESTINE SCHUMANN-HEINK said, "It is marvelous—it is grand!" Paul Whiteman, King of Jazz, said, "This instrument reproduces not only artistic music, in which it is possible clearly to distinguish every instrument, but it has made it possible for the listener to discern the individuality of each member of the orchestra."

KREISLER, WERRENRATH, JOURNET, and many others of the huge family of famous Victor artists have hailed the new Orthophonic Victrola as the greatest musical instrument since the invention of the first Victor.

You will agree with them. Demonstrations all this week. Come in—you are invited.

To Hold Chest Clinic Thursday

At the request of Miss Lillian B. Engelweide, R. N., Ulster county tuberculosis nurse, Dr. Frank Laidlaw, district state health officer, has arranged with the New York State Department of Health to hold a consultation clinic for diseases of the lungs at the City Hall, Thursday, November 4, from 1 to 4 p. m.

Dr. Lyman Thayer and Dr. Walter Wilmet of the State Department of Health will examine the patients and X-ray pictures will be taken of all suspicious cases. Anyone desiring an examination will be admitted upon presentation of a card signed by the family physician, or if there is no family physician, by the health officer.

In an effort to assist the family physician, these clinics have been held at intervals throughout the state for the past four years and large numbers of people have been referred by their doctors for examination and X-ray. Aside from known cases of tuberculosis, patients who have been referred for examination have been of two types: Persons presenting such symptoms as bronchitis, asthma, coughs, persistent colds, loss of weight, undue fatigue and symptoms of like character, and persons, especially children, who have been in contact with tuberculosis.

There is no doubt that the decrease of tuberculosis is due largely to the early diagnosis and prompt treatment of beginning cases and to the close supervision and periodic examination of exposed children.

SAYS PRISONERS ENJOYED VINEGAR COCKTAIL PARTIES

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Thomaston, Me., Nov. 2.—Vinegar cocktail parties, the cocktails made from headache tablets dissolved in vinegar drawn from small bottles of sweet pickles, were among the solitary confinement cell revels between woman prisoners, guards and male prisoners at the state prison, according to testimony today by Mrs. Leila L. Clifford, matron, before Governor Ralph O. Brewster and his counsel. Mrs. Clifford said she would not have testified regarding the alleged high jinx in the solitary cells but for the charges made by three women inmates against her husband, the Rev. Percy L. Clifford, former prison chaplain.

GOVERNMENT TAKES NO HAND IN COAL STRIKE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Nov. 2.—Despite pressure from New York and New England States, where the shortage of anthracite coal is causing privation, there was little indication today that the government will abandon its "hands off" attitude in the coal strike, now in its ninth week.

The president apparently has decided the time is not ripe to act, although pressure is being brought to bear on him from some quarters to invite the operators and miners to the White House for a joint conference.

Plan Terms for Italian Debt

Commissioners Met This Afternoon To Lay Ground Work—Believe Agreement Will Be Reached With Concessions in Italy's Case.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Nov. 2.—Italy, the third largest debtor of the United States, came to the treasury window today to ascertain how much she owes, and upon what terms she can pay it. Italy is the last of the major debtors to open funding negotiations.

The theoretical total of the Italian debt is $2,138,543,552. Actually, the negotiations starting today will revolve around a figure decidedly less. Of the gross amount $1,647,569,138 represents principal, actually borrowed. The rest is accrued interest at five per cent. Following the practice established in the British, French and other negotiations, this interest charge will be substantially reduced, in Italy's case it will be the total amount to below $2,000,000,000.

Count Volpi, head of the Italian mission, stated today he was here "to stay until an agreement is reached."

"We undertake this task with a spirit of determination," said Count Volpi. "I believe we will succeed."

The Italians came to Washington with a plan for discharging the debt. Its publications were carefully guarded, but it is reliably understood to comprise, roughly, payment of approximately $20,000,000 a year over an extended period.

While such an arrangement would be a material departure from the British funding terms, the American commissioners recognize that Italy's capacity to pay is probably less than any of the debtor nations. Burdened with a large national debt—overpopulated, and without the trade facilities that have operated to make France commercially prosperous, it is realized that concessions will have to be made in Italy's case.

It will also be taken into account that Italy did not fare so well in the distribution of German reparations, notwithstanding that her northern provinces were severely damaged in the war.

Should the British funding terms be literally applied to Italy, it would require payments of approximately $60,000,000 for 62 years.

The Italians will contend that this is too much, and it is understood will offer around $30,000,000. It is understood an agreement to reach a figure somewhere between those two will be made.

A joint meeting of the two commissions will be held late this afternoon to lay the ground work for the negotiations.

Port Ewen, Nov. 2.—Mr. and Mrs. Carl Shufelt of Cold Springs, N. Y., spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bradford on Main street.

A Halloween party was given by Norma Bradford at her home on Main street Saturday afternoon. Thirteen of her little friends were present. Lois Jump won the prize for the funniest costume. There were prizes won by Alice Van Aken, Elaine Short, Cleo Every, Dorothea Groves, Lois Jump and Norma Bradford. The afternoon was spent playing games and dancing after which sandwiches, cake, popcorn, nuts, cookies, candies were served. The following little girls were present: Elaine Short, Alice Van Aken, Helen Chambers, Dorothy Atkins, Helen Atkins, Cleo Every, Jennie Torres, Gladys Clark, Rose Clark, Lois Jump, Myra Strick, Dorothea Groves, Mildred Van Aken and Norma Bradford. At 5:30 o'clock the children departed for their homes thanking little Norma for the pleasant afternoon.

Proposals to Be Voted Upon

Democratic Leaders Confident All Four Amendments Will Be Adopted—Both Sides Claiming Gains in Assembly.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 2.—New York state voters will go to the polls tomorrow to elect members of the assembly, several supreme court justices, county and city officials and pass on four constitutional amendments sponsored by Governor Smith.

While this is an "off year" in state politics, the fight which the Republican leaders waged against the governor's two bond issues, totalling $100,000,000 has aroused widespread interest.

The four proposals to be voted upon are:

1. An amendment to authorize a $100,000,000 bond issue for permanent public improvements.

2. An amendment to authorize a $200,000,000 bond to finance the elimination of railroad grade crossings.

3. An amendment to re-organize the state department, consolidating the 103 bureaus and agencies into twenty-one main departments and reducing the elective state officials from seven to four.

4. An amendment to the judiciary article of the constitution, which, among other things, would permit the legislature to fix the salaries of judges of the court of appeals.

Republican leaders centered their attack on the two bond proposals, particularly the one for $100,000,000. The G. O. P. attack was lead by Former Governor Nathan L. Miller and Representative Ogden L. Mills of New York. Both characterized the $100,000,000 amendment as "pork barrel politics."

Under the $300,000,000 proposal the railroads would pay 50 per cent of the cost of eliminating crossings, the state 25 per cent and the locality the remaining 25 per cent.

Democratic leaders here today were confident all four amendments would be adopted. They predicted the city vote for the proposals would be more than enough to offset the upstate rural vote which is expected to be against the amendments.

Both sides are claiming gains in the assembly. The 1925 assembly was composed of 54 Republicans and 74 Democrats. The Democrats say they will gain a dozen seats in the house tomorrow. The Republicans believe they will have 100 members in the 1926 body.

VOTING.

In a few hours that remain before voters cast their ballots for their choice of candidates to carry on their public service work in city and towns, they should take time to pause and consider the candidates and what the candidates stand for.

In only a few cases is a contest lacking. From time to time The Freeman has called attention to the qualifications of various candidates. Under our system of government there will always be at least two political parties, and under the party system there must be party organization and party responsibility.

In Ulster county for many years the Republican candidates almost without exception have been men of high standing in their communities because of their ability and record of integrity. The Republican party calls for men of that calibre and frowns upon those who would bring scandal on themselves and disrepute on their political associates. Thus it happens that the Republican party has been continued in responsibility and its candidates in office by the votes of a majority of the people far more than other political parties.

The Republican candidate for justice of the Supreme court is Judge Pierre H. Russell of Rensselaer county, whose ability and honorable career led to his unanimous selection.

For assemblyman, Millard Davis received re-nomination because he has shown himself capable, conscientious and honest.

Other county candidates are Joel Brink for county treasurer, Frederick G. Traver for district attorney and W. Norman Conner for coroner. They were selected because of their records and they appeal strongly to the voter who wants clean and competent conduct of official business.

For mayor, Judge Stephan was nominated because of the growing feeling that a change is very desirable in city affairs and that he would bring to the conduct of the office the most satisfactory administration which marked his course as city judge and district attorney.

For alderman-at-large, Edgar J. Dempsey was re-nominated because of the clean, honest and efficient record he has made in that office during two years.

For judge of the city court, Augustus Shufeldt was selected because of his unquestioned ability and fitness for the office as demonstrated during the four years he served as assistant city judge.

For supervisors and aldermen, the Republican party nominees are people who are familiar with public affairs, successful in their own affairs, honest and capable, whose judgment can be relied on for competent administration and conducting public business in city and county in a way to reflect credit on themselves and benefit the taxpayer. Nominations throughout the towns have been made with the same object.

So the voter must inevitably reach the conclusion that the Republican party has lived up to its ideals and promises. Entrusting public business to its candidates is a safe procedure. It is not necessary to use abuse, vilification or misrepresentation to secure the votes of the people for them.

THE MATTER WITH COOLIDGE.

A citizen of Baltimore, the most aristocratic seat of the Catholic Church in America, writing to the New York Times on the subject of the supposed popular objection to Governor Smith as a Presidential candidate, declares that, although a Protestant, he would like, "other things being equal, to see a Catholic elected President," for "once elect a Catholic to that office, and, in my opinion, we should never hear anything more about Catholics and Protestants in connection with it," just as a similar boggy was disposed of by the choice of Chief Justice Taney and Chief Justice White (both Catholics) to be head of our great United States Supreme Court.

Among those who will emphatically disagree with him is the editor of the American Standard, for according to this organ of the Ku Klux Klan and representative of 100 per cent Americanism true patriots will know that the danger of the Presidency coming under the dominion of Rome is only too real, and they are ever bawling the fact that the dreaded thing has already come to pass. The American Standard seems to be quite sure that "when Mr. Coolidge paid honors to the Holy Name Society and feasted Cardinal O'Connell in the White House" he revealed the fact that he had "fallen under the sway of Roman Catholic suggestion" and had yielded to the "mental control of popery." The alarmed editor of the Standard says further: "President Coolidge, in voicing the identical sentiments which the Roman Catholic hierarchy desires him to voice, plainly shows to the enlightened observer that he is becoming subject to Jesuit control and has already fallen under it."

Critics of varying views and politics have gravely discussed the question as to what is the matter with Mr. Coolidge, without general acceptance of their conclusions, but now that we know, on the authority of the American Standard, that he is under the dominion of the Jesuits, the problem is at last solved—in Ku Kluxdom, at least.

MAN AND THE HORSE.

In these days of motor cars, when we talk about the horse power, we find that the motor engines run from twenty, to possibly one hundred horse power.

Some Yale research men have been able to estimate the horse power of powerful athletes, in the examination of the famous Yale crew of 1924. They found that during the hardest part of their race they were doing at least half as much work as a horse. When you compare the weight of a horse with the weight of a man, a man weighing probably one-sixth that of a horse, then you can get some idea of the tremendous work these trained athletes were capable of doing.

What is spoken of as basal metabolism is now occupying the minds of many research physicians. By this is meant the amount of work the different processes of the body are doing, when the body is without food, and lying at perfect rest. This is then compared with the amount of work that is being done when food is being digested, and also when the body is doing hard physical work.

In the case of these Yale oarsmen it was figured that some of them were actually doing twenty times as much work as a man at perfect rest. The average work that you would do in taking the ordinary exercise of golf or baseball, might be about five times as much as the person resting without food. Perhaps tennis, basketball, hockey would go considerably more than this.

Now what about this in regard to your food intake? Should you take ten or twenty times the amount of food, when you do this enormous amount of work?

No: The amount of food you should eat doing the ordinary routine work of the day, with a few minutes' exercise, is about twice the amount that you should eat, resting quietly in bed. If working at physical work eight or ten hours a day, then even four times as much food should be eaten.

Our trouble in these days is not that we do not get enough food, but that we eat too much for the amount of physical work we do.

If the youngsters are playing outdoors all day, or other members of the family are working or playing hard, then more food should quite properly be eaten.

FEAST AND FAMINE.

The second day of November in the busy year of 1775 saw General Richard Montgomery's Canadian expedition elated by a signal success, and Colonel Benedict Arnold's expedition to the same place on the verge of extinction by famine. It was a day of violent contrasts. Montgomery's force, after a tedious siege of 45 days, at last forced the surrender of St. John's, Quebec, and was then ready to advance upon Montreal. For four days they had been delivering from a battery 250 yards from the fortress their final argument in lead and iron. The 500 British regulars and 100 Canadians of the garrison could not withstand this appeal, so they walked out, leaving behind much war material and provisions which proved in time to be more useful to the Americans than the fort itself.

But in the wilderness near the borderline between Maine and Canada, Arnold's men were beginning on November 2 to boil moccasins and leather breeches, hoping to gather nourishment from the "broth." They killed and ate a pet dog and then boiled the bones. They grubbed the frozen ground with bleeding hands for roots which they ate raw. On their trip up the Kennebec river and then across to the Chaudiere river, they had lost whole boatloads of precious provisions. At some points along their water course the stream was deep and still, but they lacked paddles and oars and could not take advantage of the quick water. Then on the Chaudiere the stream was so turbulent that they were forced to land and carry their supplies, boats and all, along the trackless shore.

Then just as the stoutest hearts seemed ready to succumb to starvation and exhaustion, they saw, or thought they saw, men coming toward them leading beef cattle and horses with huge sacks on their backs. They were right. This was no phantom picture, no trick played by their delirium. Arnold, who had gone ahead for the purpose, had sent back beef and potatoes in abundance. The bearers of these blessings, as soon as they had prepared a feast for the head of the line, went back along the trail to minister to the sick and exhausted who had dropped along the way.

Arnold had also brought great news—that Montgomery was advancing with success, that the French Canadians were friendly to the American cause, and that abundant stores of provisions were awaiting them a little way ahead.

PAGEANT IN SCHOOL.

Falling Snow Added Touch of Realism to Historical Pageant.

Plattekill, N. Y., Nov. 2.—With dauntless spirit the young actors in the pageant at School District No. 3, produced their play amid falling snowflakes Friday afternoon and the results were splendid.

The light coating of snow on the cedar trees around which the Indians in their bright colored costumes glided in and out in their sports, added picturesqueness to the scenes. The warriors resplendent in their robes, beads, feathers and war paint led their bands nobly. The squaws with papooses on their backs, "John Brown's ten little Indians," and numerous other little "red men," were worthy of praise as they danced, sang, rolled hoops, shot with bows and arrows around the tepees.

The landing of the Pilgrims, the blessing by the minister of their band, was an impressive ceremony, while the Indians watched from behind the trees. The costumes of the Pilgrims were lovely in their simplicity, and they danced the minut gracefully.

The saving of John Smith's life by Pocahontas, the cabin where the white children scared the Indians by holding pumpkin faces at the windows, lacked no detail. After the brave sang, all danced around, war-whooping in true Indian fashion.

Finally the entire school saluted the American flag, gave their pledge of allegiance, sang "America," voiced their appreciation of their well-entertained audience and invited all in the school room to enjoy hot cocoa, coffee, cakes and candy.

The social time was enjoyed by all, from appearances, and no one regretted going through the storm to enjoy such a splendid affair. Inside the school room, on the sand tables, was a miniature reproduction of the early settlers' homes, surroundings, Indian tepees, wigwags and the landing of the Mayflower. These tiny wonders were made from corn stalks, bits of cloth, while white sand was molded into hills and valleys.

Passed Ten Million Mark

Present Year Most Successful for Re-forestation—Will, Haddon Planting of Forest Preserve—Glens Falls Orders 1,000,000 Trees.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Albany, Nov. 2.—The city of Glens Falls has placed an order with the Conservation Commission for one million two-year-old white pine seedlings to be delivered next spring for planting in its municipal forest.

Glens Falls' city forest was started in 1910 with a plantation on the city's watershed. It now covers about 1,300 acres and is the largest municipal forest in the state with the single exception of New York city's watershed forest around the Adirondack. It contains some of the finest plantations of white pine to be found in the state.

As a direct result of the farm bureau forest survey made last June, when representatives of the farm bureau visited the state's forest nurseries at Saratoga and Lake Clear and examined thousands of acres of planted forests in the Adirondack counties, farm bureau officials in a number of counties are planning intensive campaigns in reforestation for the coming spring.

For the first time since the reforesting movement began, the distribution of young trees from the Conservation Commission's nurseries this year passed the ten million mark. At the close of the fall planting season, there had been sent out from the nurseries 10,410,570 trees classified according to interests and ownerships as follows:

Industrial concerns.....	2,146,750
Municipalities.....	1,082,775
Demonstration plantations.....	555,645
State institutions.....	351,250
State land.....	527,300
School districts.....	30,700
Boy Scouts.....	36,000
Miscellaneous.....	516,150
Private land owners.....	5,054,000
Total.....	10,410,570

As has been the case for several years past private landowners led all other classes of tree planters both in the number of orders and the number of trees, nearly half of all the trees planted going to individuals. Next in order were the large industrial concerns who depend upon the forests for their raw material. A number of these concerns already have established nurseries of their own where they raise their planting stock from seeds and no longer depend upon the state to supply young trees. This year there were raised in nurseries operated by industrial concerns more than two million trees raising the total of forest trees planted in New York state in 1923 to more than 12,000,000.

A notable feature of this year's planting record was the heavy fall planting. Usually, the fall planting is light. This year it was more than double what it was last year in the number of orders and more than treble in the number of trees which exceeded last fall's total by 1,262,870 trees.

With the enlargement of the state nurseries made possible by the appropriation of $120,000 by the Legislature of 1922 it will be possible to resume planting on state land on a scale that has not been possible for several years as the orders for private and municipal planting took all the planting stock that the state could raise. With its greatly increased nursery capacity, the Conservation Commission plans to complete the planting of all suitable land in the forest preserve within the next three years.

"Bad Bill" Monroe Denies His Guilt

Serving Life Sentence on Plea of Guilty of Murder of Which He Now Says he is Innocent.

A despatch from Ossining to the New York Times of Sunday says that "Bill" Monroe, serving a life term in Sing Sing on his plea of second degree murder in 1923 for the slaying of a hermit in the mountain at Fishkill, notified the authorities of Dutchess county Friday that he was innocent of the hermit's murder, and that he was prepared to prove it through the signed confession of the actual slayer.

Monroe, who before his sentence for the killing of aged Andrew Bairrett in his victim's hut in the mountain, had an unsavory record and was known as "Bad Bill," says he induced the actual slayer to send the written confession to him in prison through the intervention of friends. He would not reveal who these friends are, but it is known that when William H. Anderson, former state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, was serving his sentence in Sing Sing on a forgery conviction in New York city, Anderson became interested in "Bad Bill's" repeated declarations to him in private that he didn't kill the hermit, but had a strong suspicion who did.

Monroe also was understood to have told Anderson that he consented to plead to second degree murder and receive a life sentence for the killing, because he feared that were he to stand trial on the first degree murder indictment, prejudice was so strong against him in Dutchess county that he would be found guilty and put to death in the electric chair.

Anderson, while serving his own term, was said to have communicated with friends outside about "Bad Bill's" case, and that these friends were reported to have taken steps to help Monroe prove his story. It was not until "Bad Bill's" announcement Friday in the prison that he had finally obtained what he alleged was definite proof of his innocence that his assertions were taken seriously.

It was said that "Bad Bill" had shown the letter of confession to W. H. Montgomery, a lawyer, who was induced to call on Monroe last week. Mr. Montgomery, it was reported, assured "Bad Bill" that the letter was substantial proof of his innocence, and that he would immediately take up the matter of obtaining "Bad Bill's" exoneration and release with the authorities of Dutchess county.

CARD PARTY FOR EVERYBODY AT ST. JOSEPH'S HALL

The ladies of St. Joseph's Church have all plans completed for a most unusual card party to be given in the Parish House on Wednesday evening. This party will be for all in the parish and also for the general public, and a right good time is promised whether or no the guests play cards. The young people will have a chance to dance to snappy music by talent from the church school. Beginning at 8 o'clock there will be bridge, pinocle, euchre and five hundred played and while there will be prizes for the game winners there will also be prizes for those who do not play cards. But the assigning of those prizes is to be a surprise. The money which will be received from the party—for there will be a nominal admission charged—will be given over to the Sisters of the Convent for Christmas cheer and educational work.

All who have promised cakes or other refreshments, delicious eats, having been planned, are asked by the committee in charge to have the same at the Parish House as soon after 2 o'clock Wednesday as they can get them there, and any other gifts of cakes, coffee, milk or sugar, besides those already promised will be very welcome to the committee. The committee reminds the public that the games will begin at 8 o'clock.

Sportsmen Can Help Save Grouse

Mysterious Malady Which Threatens Extinction of Birds Leads State Authorities and Game Protective Association to Issue Appeals.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Albany, Nov. 2.—Game protectors and inspectors throughout the state have been directed by Conservation Commissioner Alexander Macdonald to collect specimens of ruffed grouse and send them to Dr. A. A. Allen of Cornell University who is making a study of diseases of the ruffed grouse. The protectors have been instructed to send the entire viscera of the birds in as fresh condition as possible to permit examination for parasites or evidence of disease; also to secure specimens of the so-called "crazy" grouse that fly into buildings or otherwise kill themselves.

In a general order to the protectors, Chief Protector Legge writes: "Will you please comply with Dr. Allen's request relative to sending to sending to him the birds that come into your possession, taking due care in sending the birds as he desires them for his scientific examination? I trust that you will give Dr. Allen your hearty cooperation in this matter, as it is very important to discover what is the cause of the mortality among the grouse family."

From all parts of the range of the ruffed grouse or partridge, from Maine to Minnesota, come reports of alarming depletion from mysterious disease epidemic.

What the fatal malady is where it comes from, what causes it, how it can be avoided, are questions of vital interest to sportsmen who love grouse shooting. A similar grouse disease in England was identified and checked by scientific methods.

The American Game Protective Association has organized a committee which is carrying on a thorough scientific investigation of the diseases of the grouse throughout its entire range. Dr. Arthur A. Allen of Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., who has been studying this subject for several years, is one of this committee and in charge of the laboratory work, and all specimens from this state should be sent to him for examination.

Portmaster General New has issued an order permitting sending such specimens by parcel post. If the distance is short they may be sent fresh, or salted; otherwise they should be treated in a formaldehyde solution and dried before shipping. Dr. Allen desires as many fresh specimens as possible. When frozen, it is not to send the entire carcasses of the birds, the viscera, that is stomach, liver and all other internal organs, should be sent.

It is a pity that it is so difficult to get this sort of material to work with and nobody can get them the material except the sportsmen. Every man who shoots a grouse should save its stomach and other internal organs and send them to Dr. Allen. Every bird found dead should be preserved entire and promptly forwarded.

Detailed instructions for treating specimens can be obtained from same protectors or from the Grouse trial

The Reason Why Public Records of Public Funds Are the Private Property of the Republican Machine.

Analyzing the political advertisement of the County Treasurer, in the form of a letter, which criticizes an inspection by a taxpayer of the public records of the public funds, the published statement in that letter shows:

That the amount of public funds deposited during the year 1925 in The Kingston Trust Company and its Branch amounts to the sum of $1,410,976.43.

The letter states, "The Kingston Trust Company is used by me as a clearing house for all funds coming into my hands."

Assuming this to be so, the aggregate of all the public funds deposited in ALL the other banks in the County of Ulster is only $194,852.28, less than 14% of the amount received by the Kingston Trust Company and its Branch.

The Kingston Trust Company retaining, until disbursed for public needs, the use of $1,216,124.15, over 86% of the total public funds.

The Chairman of the Republican County Committee is the President of the Kingston Trust Company.

The Secretary of the Republican County Committee and also County Attorney is the Trust Officer of The Kingston Trust Company.

The present County Treasurer is the Vice-President of the Kingston Trust Company.

The Republican nominee for County Treasurer is a Director of The Kingston Trust Company.

The public good demands that it be freed from this monopoly of the charge and direction of all public funds.

In 1923 and 1924 six towns in Ulster County containing about 20,000 inhabitants, representatives and Democratic Supervisors, were penalized by not receiving their share of the public fund for highway in office without.

The stockholders and depositors of the Kingston Trust Company are not the only Ulster County. The other banks in Ulster are entitled to their proportionate share to be derived from the deposit of public funds.

"How do you like the zoo?" asked Mr. Three-Banded Armadillo.

"Do you wish to hear my valuable opinion?" said Mr. Nine-Banded Armadillo, "or do you wish to hear the simple opinion of our cousin, the Six-Banded Armadillo?"

"Simple opinions are often the best," said Mr. Three-Banded Armadillo.

"And," he added, "just because you have nine bands, you must be proud."

"Why, I am considered the most remarkable of all armadillos, and I have only three bands!"

"Why are you so remarkable?" asked Mr. Nine-Banded Armadillo.

"Because," said the Three-Banded Armadillo, and then he paused.

"Because why?" the other two cousins asked. Mr. Nine-Banded Armadillo looking especially interested.

"In the first place," said Mr. Three-Banded Armadillo, "I have only three bands in place of the nine you have in the middle of your horny shell which protects you from enemies."

"And Mr. Six-Banded Armadillo only has six bands, but his shell is stronger and more bony than yours."

"You two are alike in almost every other way."

by my bony shell so I would be one mass, or one ball, of sharp points.

"That's enough to keep animals away from me who would be apt to hurt me."

"Yes, I am quite remarkable."

"Even though I have no teeth my shell, I see that those animals with plenty of teeth don't have the pleasure or opportunity to bite into me."

"It would be no pleasure to me, I can assure you—so why should I permit such a pleasure in others—free?"

"There is no reason for it that I can see, and so I am quite protected and quite safe."

"It is a great comfort to me."

"It is a comfort to me while I am young. It will be a comfort to me, as they say, in my old age."

"Isn't that a bit of good luck, all right?"

"Yes," said Mr. Nine-Banded Armadillo, "you are certainly remarkable and interesting, but there are many things which are alike about all of us."

"We are about as large as the opossum family. We are fussy about our food, we're not overly strong, nor are we tough, and by tough I do not mean in any slinky sense."

"Dear me, no! I mean that we're not tough in our health. We're delicate, and therefore valuable."

"When we're wild we eat snails, beetles, grasshoppers, ants, and many different kinds of worms as well as nice, juicy bugs."

"And we all burrow in the earth."

"We all do, it is true," said Mr. Three-Banded Armadillo.

"But you two haven't told me how you like the zoo?"

"Oh, he wants both of us to tell him," said Mr. Six-Banded Armadillo. "We will have to speak at once."

"So the other two thought out what they would say, and then they said the following in a stinging manner as though they were giving an Armadillo diet:

"We like the zoo very much, but if children think we're queer with our hands around our shells, we think they're queer with their dresses, suits, shoes and stockings and hats."

"Yes, that is what we think." And replied Mr. Armadillo said so, too, of the Amid the clamor of the street With far-off thoughts I live again Among the streams and hills. —William Dunn.

THE SAVORY RABBIT

Escoffier, the famous chef, says the lack of enthusiasm about rabbits is due largely to the lack of knowledge in cooking them. This may be true, but this prejudice and lack of knowledge troubles us not so much as the lack of the rabbit. "First catch your hare," is the important step, then we will be glad to follow the recipes the chef recommends.

Curry of Rabbit.—Cut up the rabbit and cook in hot fat, seasoning well when the meat is well-seared over. Add two medium-sized onions, chopped, and two teaspoonsful of curry powder; cook fifteen minutes. Moisten with boiling water. Cover the pan and cook twenty-five minutes. Serve with a dish of hot rice.

Pilaf of Rabbit.—Prepare the rabbit and cut it into serving-sized pieces. Into a saucepan place four tablespoonsful of lard or butter, add the rabbit and when slightly brown, season with salt and pepper and a medium-sized onion finely chopped. Cook ten minutes, then add six tablespoonsful of clear consommé. Add one and one-half pints of boiling water and reduce by boiling. Cover the pan and cook over a slow fire for twenty minutes.

Rabbit Saute With Mushrooms.—Skin a young rabbit carefully, clean and cut into pieces. Put the liver inside and add the rabbit to hot fat in a frying pan; season with salt and pepper and one onion, one clove of garlic, chopped fine, three tomatoes, one dozen peeled mushrooms, a teaspoonful of parsley finely minced, with one-fourth cupful of sour fruit juice. Cover the saucepan and finish cooking over a moderate fire. Twenty minutes will be sufficient time for cooking if the rabbit is young.

When the age of the rabbit is indefinite, parboiling is always best before cooking in fat or roasting. Parboil in water which has a tablespoonful of vinegar added; when tender brown in butter or brush with butter and broil or bake.

JUSTICE COFFEY'S ABILITY Wins Non-Partisan Tribute

SUPREME COURT CANDIDATE ACCORDED WIDESPREAD SUPPORT IN HOME COUNTY—WHERE A MAN IS KNOWN BEST.

SEVENTY OF THE EIGHTY-FIVE MEMBERS OF THE RENSSELAER COUNTY BAR ASSOCIATION INDORSED JUSTICE COFFEY.

From The Troy Record, Republican.

The Supreme Court Justiceship.

In the selection of men for the higher courts of this State there should be no consideration of partisanship. Voters should select their judges solely on the basis of equipment for the responsible task of administering justice to all who appear before the tribunal. To assure such justice a candidate should have stability and sincerity of character, a profound knowledge of the law; and a wide experience in its practice.

Because he possesses these qualities to an exceptional degree The Troy Record hopes the citizenship of Rensselaer County and the Third Judicial District, irrespective of party, will support Justice James V. Coffey for the Supreme Court and that Judge Coffey will be elected.

Justice Coffey represents all that is desirable in a judicial candidate. He has proved, both in public and private life, that he is a man of dependable character. He has been an asset to the community, a dominant factor in its philanthropic, civic and religious activities. He has behind him a record of twenty-four years of general practice, broadening his vision and completing his book of knowledge of the law by experience. He has worn the ermine by appointment for seven months and has made a record which harks back to the days of Justice Charles R. Ingalls and Justice Edgar L. Fursman. He has stood the acid test and has come through unscathed.

The Troy Record has no word of condemnation for the Republican candidate. But it does not think that a very brief period of desultory practice, broken by political appointment and followed by two terms of service in the County Court balances Justice Coffey's admittedly high standing for many years among the younger practitioners of Troy and his remarkable success on the Supreme Court bench since he was placed there by Governor Smith. It has been said that no man should aspire to the Supreme Court unless his experience in the profession has been attested by a proved earning power at least equal to the salary of a judge. Justice Coffey easily qualifies under such a test.

To repeat, the political affiliations of the candidates should have nothing whatever to do with the matter. Partisan opinions are as foreign to judicial equipment as pole is to pole. It would be as sensible to select judges on the basis of their taste in food or in sports as to choose men to high tribunals because they vote this or that political ticket. The appeal of Judge Russell to the voters of Troy is very largely a partisan one. That of Justice Coffey is based solidly—and properly may be based exclusively—on recognized capacity, sterling character and wide legal experience. His election would be a return to the best traditions of the bench in this district and would be an honor to the county where he has practised.—Editorial Troy Record, Sept. 29, 1925.

JUSTICE JAMES V. COFFEY

The New Supreme Court Justice

Justice Coffey is, first of all, a gentleman. In him the "fine flower of courtesy" is the expression of an inward sincerity. Mr. Coffey was never suspected of a dishonorable act, for that would be inconsistent with his character. The Justice has a masterly knowledge of the law—its history, its formulations, its practice, its significance, the authority of its essential reasonableness. The highest tributes to his legal capacity will come from those most competent assessors, his associates at the bar. The fairness and competency of such decisions as it may fall to him to hand down will be expressed in language of extraordinary precision and rhetorical felicity. Justice Coffey has been placed in a high office. It is a pleasure to be able to say that he measures up to the standard traditionally associated with that office.—Editorial, Troy Times, Republican.

From the Troy Record, Republican.

Politics and the Courts.

Why is it necessary for some people to think of every elective office in terms of politics? There are some places in which politics has no part whatever. To inject it into the selection of men for such offices is to do a real injury to the community.

Yet this is precisely what is being done today in regard to the choice of a Supreme Court Justice. There seems to be a general agreement among people of the district, particularly among members of the bar, that Justice Coffey has qualifications very rare in candidates for the bench. He is judicially minded. His character is beyond reproach. His courtesy and kindness carry one back to the days when a judge always represented the flower of the profession, intellectually, morally and socially. He has proved his competence by some months of service, and during those months he has made a record which has won him commendation from those who have appeared before him, irrespective of political opinions.

In spite of the fact that Judge Coffey is admitted to be close to the ideal demanded for service on the bench, men and women are being asked to support candidates on the ground of party regularity. For example, Republican orators are pleading that Rensselaer County belongs to a Republican judicial district and must place upon the bench a Republican.

Nobody has uttered a thought against Justice Coffey on the supposition that his opinions or courtesies to members of the bar will be influenced by the way he votes in November. He has refused to appear on the platform or to canvass for votes because of his fear that he may be looked upon as a partisan candidate—something wholly divorced from the high ideal upon which the judicial system in this country is founded. He presents himself with but a single question to the voters of this county and this district: Am I fitted for the tasks of the tribunal better than any other candidate?

That is the only question which properly should be asked. To present a name at political meetings and to ask for ballots on political grounds—for party regularity—is not in accordance with theories of judicial office. Justice Coffey has taken a high position and deserves commendation for it.

From the standpoint of equipment it is the opinion of The Troy Record that there is no comparison between the two candidates. Whether one considers them from experience in the general practice of law, from activity in civic and community endeavor, from leadership among men of influence or from judicial capacity as evidenced by their careers on the bench, Justice Coffey easily justifies the support of the voter. He harks back to the old judicial ideals; he represents a standard of intelligence and independence all too rare on the bench in these days. He is a man whose legal judgments warrant confidence, whose personality wins approval whose private life is above criticism.

It is true that the district has always been Republican. This, however, should have nothing to do with the choice of the best man who can be secured, irrespective of party opinions, for an impending vacancy on the bench. It is a notable fact that the strongly Republican committee to the south, in several instances, have met Justice Coffey and have seen his work as a judge; and in those counties partisan necessities have not prevented a substantial number of voters of strong party affiliations opposite to those of Justice Coffey to state frankly that they intend to support him.

A similar situation rules in Rensselaer County. If voters will divorce themselves, in considering a candidate for the judiciary, from party creeds—which have absolutely nothing to do with the important task of dispensing justice—and will place upon the Supreme Court bench the man who, by experience, equipment and temperament, deserves the position, Justice Coffey will overcome the normal resistance, not only in this, but in other counties and will retain the robes of office which he has worn so worthily for the last seven months.

Woman Adjudged Insane After Emaciated Man Is Found.

Fremont, Neb.—John Plants, fifty-nine, a retired farmer, is free from imprisonment in his own home covering the greater part of the past year. His jailer, Mrs. Myrtle Plants, fifty-two, his wife, has been adjudged insane and is to be taken to the state hospital for treatment.

The plight of Plants was not known, even to his neighbors, until his wife had been taken into custody on complaint of the tenant of a farm he once owned, on the charge of trespass. When the officers went to find the woman they discovered Plants locked up in an upstairs room, weak and faint from insufficient food. He told them that his wife had kept him under lock and key for a long time, and that the only time she had allowed him to get out was when she wanted the lawn mowed. He said he submitted to it rather than to have a row about it, as she was insistent upon his staying home while she ran their affairs.

Financial Reverses

The investigation that followed disclosed that a succession of financial reverses had overwhelmed Plants while it had caused a mental derangement of his wife. Six years ago the family lived on a farm near Dodge, and owned two other farms in the neighborhood. Believing they had enough to retire on, they came to Fremont and bought an $8,000 home in this city. The three farms were encumbered, and when deflation hit the industry in this

NOCTURNAL FIEND PREYS ON WOMEN

Warns of Coming Crimes and Derides Police.

Nashville, Tenn.—Nashville has a midnight prowler who makes threats to kill, and then keeps his promises. The newspapers and police are fruitlessly trying to solve the mystery.

A threat that he would enter a Delta avenue house was carried out when the marauder entered a house and slashed the throat of Mrs. Morton Smithson.

Then he wrote a letter deriding the "bum police" of Nashville and asking, "Who is the joke on now?" A week later the editor of a Nashville newspaper received a letter saying:

"I promise to come back to Delta avenue Monday night, and I also promise that no one will live to tell the tale after I leave the house. I will kill first and not leave a chance of getting caught."

The letter, scrawled on yellow paper with a pencil, was signed "Yours truly, The Midnight Marauder."

While a week before the newspapers and police took the first threat as a joke, serious alarm was occasioned by the second. A special detective detail was sent out to capture the man.

Dog Saves Lives of Four Stealing Ride on Ship

New York—A South American liner reached here with four sick but happy men. They were in the ship's hospital and when removed to Ellis island to be sent back on the next ship leaving for Buenos Aires, their faces wreathed in smiles at their luck.

Their lives had been saved by a dog, a little brown pekingese, owned by Mrs. Rodolfo Le Brett of Chicago.

The men had slipped aboard the liner in Buenos Aires. With three days' food supply they slid down the main ventilator.

On the third day, with their food gone, they realized their mistake. However, they hung on five days more. Then, weakened, they attempted to come out of their hiding place and surrender, but all four felt exhausted at the small landing inside the ventilator about ten feet from the rim. At this point is a small opening.

Ching Lee, the little pekingese found great delight in playing about the ventilator, and on the eighth night out he became excited and barked for several minutes. Mrs. Le Brett saw the arm of a man sticking through the small hole.

Mrs. Le Brett sent for an officer, who found the men.

Tot Has Perilous Ride on Auto Running Board

Marquette, Mich.—After a rather wild ride on the running board of his dad's car, with the father unaware that his child was in such a perilous position, a three-year-old son was rescued when the driver of another car informed the father of the babe's danger. The identity of the father was not learned, for in the excitement he picked up the child, placed him in his car and drove away quickly.

John Deschambeau noticed the child's danger and frantically signaled the driver to stop. The latter thought some one was trying to pass him, so he "stepped on the gas."

Deschambeau, seeing that his pursuit increased the baby's danger, swung off onto a side street and broke the speed limit in circling the block to head off the driver. He succeeded in blocking the path of the car and forcing it to halt.

"You have a baby on the running board of your car," Deschambeau shouted. The father nearly collapsed when he saw what had taken place.

Ring Long Lost

Lynn, Mass.—Thirty years ago Mrs. Michael Ahern lost her wedding ring while working in her garden in East Bridgewater. Mrs. Thomas Murray, who now occupies the same house, found the ring in the garden, and recognizing the initials on it, returned it to Mrs. Ahern.

Man Catches Baby in Three-Story Plunge

New York—An unidentified young man in the Bronx saved the life of two-year-old Moe Klein and then disappeared. As he approached an apartment building he suddenly ran with outstretched arms. Women and children screamed as their eyes turned to the object of his care.

Perched on a window ledge on the third floor was little Moe, looking down at friends on the street and giggling. Inside the apartment the boy's mother, Lucy in the kitchen, was unaware of her child's danger.

The calm stranger stationed himself with arms outstretched as little Moe lurched forward with a scream and hurtled through the air. He fell into the man's arms, throwing him off feet, but he held tight to the baby, which was only slightly injured.

A crowd gathered but while women were crying and seeking to kiss the young man he walked away.

Fish and Fish

In the Philippines there are fish that climb trees, fish that squirt poison through gill-plates, fish so small that 10,000 of them, matured, make a light breakfast for a native, and fish that live on dry land and drown when placed in the water.

This is the breakfast your doctor likes

Clay Tablets 3,400 Years Old

despite the necessity of traversing rough roads and crossing irrigation ditches.

To reach the nearest railroad station from Kirkuk, however, it was necessary to ford two streams and cross mountain passes which were in wretched condition. Dr. Chiera hesitated at subjecting the tablets to such hazards and finally, through the courtesy of British authorities, heavy British bombing planes, each capable of carrying thousands of pounds, were used to carry the tablets.

Carried by Airplane.

When the planes were obtained it was decided to make the entire 160 mile trip to Bagdad by airplane. At Bagdad the tablets were put aboard boats and carried 500 miles down the Tigris river to Basrah, near the Persian Gulf. From Basrah they were transferred to other boats and taken to Bombay. Here a long wait ensued until a vessel coming directly to the United States was found.

Ancient Envelopes Like Pic Crust.

Dr. Chiera expects to complete within a year the translation of the tablets which have been stored in a fireproof room provided by Asa Don Dickinson, University of Pennsylvania Librarian, although, in addition to deciphering all the letters he will also be forced to remove many of them from their original clay envelopes, a tedious process. The envelopes were made, Dr. Chiera says, in much the same manner as the modern pie crust, the thinly rolled clay being carefully folded around a letter and the rough edges neatly trimmed.

Since a clay envelope cannot be opened without ruining it beyond repair, according to Dr. Chiera, it is conceivable, he says, that the sealed letters, together with the other tablets, were abandoned when the twenty-two room palace in whose ruins they were found was suddenly attacked and destroyed by enemies, probably the Assyrians.

Ancient Assyrians Wrecked Ruin.

Proof of the destruction wrought in the palace was visible on all sides. Skeletons of a woman and baby, apparently crushed to death when the roof of the palace fell, were found in one of the rooms. Jars containing pottery had been thrown upon the floors, and debris from the burned roof beams lay everywhere.

Numerous drinking vessels, bowls and jars had been smashed, fragments lying in heaps outside the house where they had evidently been thrown in haste, and the entire palace and its vicinity provided an excellent example of the destruction which always attended a punitive expedition of the ancient Assyrians, according to Dr. Chiera.

HALLOWEEN DISPLAY MADE PEOPLE HUNGRY.

One of the most elaborate Halloween window displays in Kingston was that in the show window of the Advance Restaurant on Wall street. Many people stopped Saturday afternoon and evening to admire the display and after viewing the good things which were displayed they stepped inside and enjoyed the special Halloween dinner which was served by Manager Reed.

The window display was typical of the Halloween spirit, the colors used in decoration being black and orange. In the center of the window was a little roast pig done to a turn and surrounded the little porker were the things which go with a roast pig dinner. Pumpkin pie, always a favorite at this time of the year, large rosy apples and numerous fancy cakes and a couple of bottles of Scotch brew played havoc with those who had firmly resolved to follow a much less substantial diet.

About the window were numerous goblins and witches brilliant in their head colors. The elaborate design of the window laid out by Mr. Reed was carefully followed out in detail, to present the spirit of Halloween and is perhaps one of the most elaborate Halloween window displays ever made in Kingston.

Kingston Plays Chester Tuesday

The Kingston quintet of the Tri-County Basketball League plays its first game Tuesday at Chester. The Chester Five in former seasons presented a very strong line-up and the first game of the league promises to be a tough affair.

The first league contest to be staged in this city will occur on Wednesday evening, when the Middletown outfit appears here. Little is known of the Middletown five in this city.

The Kingston aggregation made a very good showing in its exhibition game at the armory court last week and the results of the first two games will give slight idea of its chances in the league.

The net will be used for the first game here Wednesday. The usual dancing will follow the struggle and a large crowd is expected to turn out.

FORT JERVIS DEFEATED Poughkeepsie 10 TO 7.

Port Jervis defeated Poughkeepsie High in the Port town in a 10 to 7 battle Saturday afternoon in a game that was reeking with excitement from the opening kickoff until the final whistle. The score was 7 to 0 in the last period in favor of the Bridge City outfit with only six minutes to play. The Bridge City fans claim that their star fullback, Zimmerman, kicked seriously by a spectator, the injury causing Zimmerman's removal from the game. Following this removal the Poughkeepsie team weakened greatly and the Port team amassed ten points to win the affair.

No matter what your previous experience has been in trying to smoke a pipe, forget it. Write it on the ice! You can smoke a pipe if it's packed with P. A. Yes, sir! For a fact, they'd have to sue you to get that jimmy-pipe away from you, once you give P. A. a work-out.

Cool and sweet and fragrant, P. A. puts a padlock on pipe-worries and throws away the key. Can't bite your tongue or parch your throat. The Prince Albert process fixes that. Just downright, deep-rooted contentment—morning till midnight.

Quality without a doubt. And quantity too. You get more for your money both ways when you smoke P. A. There are TWO full ounces in every tin. (Look at the U. S. revenue stamp.) Get going! Steer straight for the store where they hand out such happiness in tidy red tins. It'll be P. A. for yours after that.

K. H. S. Eleven Trimmed Again

St. Stephen's Seconds Beat Local High Grid Team 32 to 0—Local Boys Are Making a Very Poor Showing This Season.

The St. Stephen's warriors traveled a well beaten path Saturday afternoon, the college Second and Freshmen teams unitedly shoving the oval five times past Kingston High School's final chalkline at the Athletic Field in a game which finished in a 32-0 victory for the Annandale team.

Coch Bray sent over two entirely different grid teams against the local eleven. The college Second squad being used in the first half and the final quarter while the Frosh outfit played in the third period.

In the opening quarter neither of the teams could gain a decided advantage both closely guarding their respective territories and engaging mostly in punting. The Saints were severely penalized this initial quarter for being off-side. Both the Seconds and the Frosh were repeatedly off-side the two teams penalties inflicted in the first three periods totaling eighty yards.

Although held hard by the Maroon and White team in the opening quarter the Annandale Seconds aroused themselves the following period, and escorted the pigskin across for two touchdowns.

At the opening of the second quarter during an exchange of punts Johnson booted to the Saints and Weeks the speedy quarterback grabbed the oval on the thirty marker and sweeping around the starboard deck, ducking and sidestepping the local tacklers he scooped up along the sidelines, cutting down the remaining 70 yards for a rather spectacular opening touchdown. Weeks made the seventh point.

The Saints seemed to flash in bunches for directly following the kickoff the Seconds captured the ball and Weeks speedily drove his machine up the field to the 30 marker where he shot a spiral to Doggett for the second prize of the quarter. Coach O'Leary had shifted several of his second squad into the game the entire backfield being of the second water with the exception of Shurter. Others of the second team were Wilkins at center and Howard at guard. John Byrne at tackle of last year's variety, but ineligible this year for the Duo matches, was the only other stranger in the line-up. Byrne's work was good, he making a number of timely tackles.

The Annandale crew tried several short passes and one or two long ones but the K. H. S. team broke up nearly all of the long stretches and the Saints resorted to short spirals which they found profitable.

"Chick" Tyndal, a full-blooded Indian playing at fullback was the outstanding back of Frosh aggregation during their reign throughout the third period. Tyndal was most effective on line plunging tactics besides receiving wonderful interference from the rest of his front line tribesmen. In the latter part of the third period the Freshmen worked the ball up from the middle of the field on line bucking plays, Tyndal taking the ball over on a ten-yard gain.

The K. H. S. team made their greatest gainage of the afternoon in the final quarter. Johnson unloosing a spiral to Svirsky for ten yards before being brought down on the enemy's 35-yard line. Johnson tried another pass but this was grounded. On the third trial his spiral was intercepted by Stolz who snatched the ball and galloped up the gridiron 65-yards for a touchdown. Weeks kicked the placement.

The Annandale crew made the final touchdown in the last period.

K. H. S. TRACK TEAM WON MEET AT GOSHEN

The gloom that has been cast about Kingston High School of late because of their many defeats on the gridiron was speedily forgotten Saturday afternoon after the cross country team had returned from their invasion of Goshen.

The local harriers were entered in the State Sectional Meet at Goshen and the result is that they practically copped all the honors, four local men winning major laurels, besides winning the meet.

John Scanlan, the local track captain, carried off first place honors at the meet, crossing the tape two minutes ahead of his closest rival in the procession, Alfred Colclough, another K. H. S. runner, who took this second honor. The other Maroon and White runners taking major honors were William Swart, taking sixth place and Loren Andrews finishing seventh. The local high school's score was 16. The four local harriers will travel to Syracuse this Saturday to compete for the state championship.

Although several other schools were entered in the meet, Port Jervis and Pine Bluffs were the only other schools having representatives in the meet.

Scanlan's time was 13 minutes over the two and a half mile course. The local track captain has a wonderful chance to grab the state championship as his time was much better than other sectional winners about the state. Scanlan's time was several seconds less than Ritchie, present state champion, who won the sectional meet for Schenectady High at Schenectady Saturday.

ALUMNI BOOKING TEAM FOR THANKSGIVING DAY.

As the Kingston High School football team is playing at Yonkers on Thanksgiving Day the alumni squadron which played the high school in its opening game, is negotiating to bring a grid team here as its opponents on that day.

The alumni are making efforts to book a team of the professional branch of the sport and have in mind a likely aggregation from Peckskill.

Take snick should result in a snappy battle as the alumni outfit can be depended upon to give and take their share in the gridiron sport. The alumni is a good team and the match will probably be hailed with great anticipation.

Church House At Port Ewen

Dedication of the Church House of Port Ewen Methodist Episcopal Church on Sunday Largely Attended.

Sunday at Port Ewen Methodist Episcopal Church was a great day. It marked the dedication and opening of the new church house. This service was held at 2:30 p. m.

The dedicatory address was delivered by the Rev. George Benton Smith, district superintendent. He spoke of the threefold life of man—body, mind and soul, pointing to the fact that it was the business of the church to provide means for the cultivation of every side of the life of the children and youth who are under the care of the church that they may be fitted for service. The special singing was furnished by a male quartet consisting of the Messrs. Mable, Howe, Houck and Schuler, and a duet by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Houck. The church organist, Mrs. Harry Mable, was pianist.

Christopher Ricks, president of the board of trustees, presented the building for dedication. This service was impressive. Several visiting clergymen assisted. The friends and members of this church are very happy over the acquisition to their facilities in carrying on the work. They now have room for the educational, social and recreational life of the church.

RETURN IMPROVING BROADWAY PROPERTY

Joseph Netburn, owner of the large brick business house at 560-562 Broadway, has had the old front of the stores torn out preparatory to having installed two up-to-date metal and plate glass fronts, similar to the modern and attractive store fronts recently installed on Wall and North Street. It will be a notable improvement to the central Broadway section. Mr. Netburn, who conducts a clothing and men's furnishing store at 554 Broadway, after the improvements are completed to his building, will move to 560 Broadway and conduct his business there.

Tracing Age of Man

Efforts to fix the date of the first appearance of man on earth have proved futile. We can only fall back upon the methods used in geology. Man as we find him now first appeared in the concluding phase of the Pleistocene period as the artist of the caves at a time when the British Isles formed part of the continent of Europe.

The American Legion

(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

COMMANDER MICHIE, FLYER AND LAWYER

Thomas Johnson Michie, Jr., commander of the Virginia department of the American Legion, was born at Northport, Long Island, N. Y., on June 7, 1890, of a Virginian father and a Pennsylvanian mother. The mother's native place was the "City of Brotherly Love," where the American nation came into being with the signing of the Declaration of Independence on the Fourth of July 149 years ago. The father's home had been at Charlottesville, seat of the great University of Virginia, which was founded by Thomas Jefferson from whose pen had come the immortal Declaration.

The younger Michie attended the public schools at Northport from 1902 to 1906. In March, 1906, the family moved to Charlottesville. He went to the public schools there and then attended Jefferson school for boys, a prep school for the University of Virginia. He entered the university in September, 1914, and graduated with the A. B. degree in June, 1917, completing the full collegiate course in three years.

In May before his graduation he entered the first officers' training camp held at Fort Meyer. He was transferred to the air service in August of that year and attended Cornell air service ground school from August to October following.

In November of the first year of the war he went overseas, remaining until the year following. For the greater part of the time he was stationed at Foggia, Italy. For some weeks in the summer of 1918 he was at Tours, France. He was commissioned a second lieutenant in May, 1918.

In January, 1919, he resumed the education which the war had interrupted, entering the graduate and law schools of his alma mater. He received the Master of Arts degree in 1920, and the Bachelor of Laws degree in 1921. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Theta Delta Chi and was president of the law department in 1921.

Since 1921 he has been engaged in the practice of his profession at Charlottesville. He is now a member of the firm of Allen, Walsh & Michie. In the season of 1921-22 he was an instructor in the University of Virginia law school.

A charter member of Charlottesville and Albemarle Post No. 74 of the Legion, Michie was adjutant of the post in 1922 and 1923 and its commander in 1924. He was elected commander of the department of Virginia for the present year.

Warning About Loans on the Certificates

"Beware of money lenders who seek to get their hands on your World War adjusted compensation certificates," is the reiterated warning that American Legion service officials at Washington are sending to veterans throughout the country. The warning is the result of a report from the secret service division of the Treasury department that certificates have been used as the basis of loans not sanctioned by law. Agents of the secret service reported that 235 adjusted service certificates had been accepted by a money lender in San Antonio, Texas.

The Legion officials point out that the World War adjusted compensation act provides that after the expiration of two years from the date of the certificates, loans may be made. Any national bank, or any bank or trust company incorporated under the laws of any state, territory, possession or the District of Columbia, is authorized to loan any veteran upon his promissory note, secured by his adjusted service certificate; and the act expressly makes void any negotiation, assignment or loan made in violation of these provisions.

These restrictions were placed in the act to avoid exploitation of veterans by unscrupulous money lenders, while the provision allowing them to negotiate loans upon their certificates under certain conditions were intended further to protect their interests.

RED CROSS FINANCES SHOW WIDE SERVICES

Past Year Cost $10,321,679.80; Duty to Ex-Service Men Paramount.

Washington.—The national and international services of the American Red Cross are portrayed graphically in a statement of the Red Cross finances for the past fiscal year ended June 30, 1925. Expenditures by the Red Cross (including both the National Organization and the Chapters) during this period aggregated $10,321,679.80.

The obligation of the American Red Cross to the ex-service and service men is represented in this sum by a total expenditure of $4,225,292.61. In the interests of disabled veterans, the Red Cross expended $3,577,916.42, of which $1,577,916.42 came from the National Organization, and $1,900,000 from the more than 3,000 Chapters and local branches of the society. Red Cross services to the men of the Regular Army and Navy the past year called for $647,376.19, of which the National Organization furnished $310,376.19, and the Chapters, $337,000.

Sharing in importance with this responsibility was the Red Cross work of disaster relief during the year. In these operations there was absorbed a total of $1,922,782.90 up to June 30, this year. This represented $1,523,782.90 of National Organization funds and $398,999.99 from the Chapters. Relief in foreign disasters amounted to $235,579.35. This sum was appropriated altogether by the National Organization.

Insular and foreign operations of the American Red Cross during the year included relief in foreign disasters, the League of Red Cross Societies, Junior Red Cross Foreign Projects, assistance to insular Chapters and similar functions. Besides its disaster relief, the National Organization financed these other branches of foreign work also, including $110,238.72 for assistance to insular chapters, $177,450 for the League of Red Cross Societies, $84,381.43 for Junior projects abroad, and $80,987.62 for other insular and foreign operations.

In addition to its paramount duty to assist veterans and other service men and their families, and its disaster relief, the Red Cross expended at home through its national and chapter funds, a total of $1,039,516.05 for its Public Health Nursing Service; $154,185.09 for nutrition instruction; $314,422.76 for First Aid and Life Saving; $445,707.34 for Junior Red Cross; $122,759.88 for instruction in Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick; and carried on similarly important home duties. Included in the latter were such valuable services as the Enrolled Nurses' Reserve, for which the National Organization expended $45,562.84; while other national operations at home amounted to $302,957.64.

The chapters, in addition to the large part they played in all Red Cross activity, spent $679,000 of their own funds on general chapter services. The broad humanity of the American Red Cross can never be measured by the money it costs, but even its bare terms of dollars and cents, the scope of its work is indicated. A study of these facts also shows the necessity for the largest possible enrollment, since Red Cross service is maintained almost entirely by its membership. The annual invitation to participate in this work through membership in the American Red Cross, is extended from Armistice Day, November 11, to Thanksgiving, November 26.

Red Cross First Aid Popular in America As Accidents Gain

The rapidly mounting toll from traffic accidents has brought home to the public the necessity of being prepared to render prompt assistance while awaiting the doctor. During the past year 356 chapters of the American Red Cross were instructing classes in First Aid, and in the same period certificates were issued to 26,601 persons qualified by Red Cross experts.

Many cities throughout the United States are showing interest in securing first aid instruction for their police and fire department personnel, and through the work of local chapters, practical results have been obtained in such cities as Washington, D. C.; Toledo, O.; Boston, Mass.; South Bend and Indianapolis, Ind.; Port Arthur, Texas, and other communities. In co-operation with the State authorities, intensive training in first aid and rescue methods has been given to State police and constabulary members at State training schools.

Instruction in these subjects in public and private schools, colleges and universities has increased during the year. Attention has been given to training teachers at institutes and summer schools.

The Red Cross first aid railroad car has been in continuous operation throughout the year. It covered 19,219 miles, visiting 137 cities, where 1,269 meetings were conducted by the surgeons, with a total of 14,627 people.

Industries particularly have availed themselves of the instruction afforded by the Red Cross. The Western Electric Company, for example, reports a reduction of the accident rate per 1,000 employees.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Nov. 2.—Higher prices prevailed in practically every section of the stock market today. With Hudson and Hupp in the lead, motor stocks pushed upward buoyantly in as vigorous movements as has been seen in a month or more. Hudson sold up to 126 for a new gain of nine points and Hupp sold above 28, up 3/4. While surged to above par for a gain of 5 1/2 points and Chrysler gained five in reduced trading. Mack Trucks topped its best previous record at 241 1/2. Jordan sold at 65 and Chandler was up 3 at 46. United States Rubber spouted four points to above 82 in another strenuous period.

With speculative fever intensified by the spectacular forward price movements in motor, industrial and specialty stocks, the market was in a turmoil throughout the most of today's session as stocks were bid for at the highest average level of prices in the post-war period.

Bullish pools rode rough shod over the professional bears who attempted to stem the tide of rapidly rising prices.

Bullish traders hailed with enthusiasm the return of American Can to the leadership in the industrials. This stock hurdled over all its former record prices and sold at 262 for a new gain of 8 points, while bullish traders freely predicted that the stock would reach its objective of 300.

United States Steel advanced nearly two points, but better records were made by the independent steel stocks, under the lead of Ludlum. On "inside" buying by officers of the company, this stock reached 62 1/2, up 5 points.

General Electric was up 7 points at 220, and Cast Iron Pipe up 10.

A 45 point recovery in cotton was cheerful news for both Wall street and the great southern cotton districts. Call money ruled at 5 per cent.

Why Voter Will Vote for Wells

Cautious Onlooker in Saugerties Content Discussion Reasons Which Decide Him to Vote for Republican Candidate for Supervisor.

The Saugerties Post publishes a letter from one of its readers concerning the contest in that town for supervisor, and sets forth clearly the reasons which impel him to vote for Harry Wells, the Republican party nominee.

The letter is as follows:

Dear Mr. Editor:
I have read with interest the articles appearing in your columns about the present campaign for the election of supervisor for the town of Saugerties, and while I make no pretense of the highly developed acumen of our local political moguls, I hope I may not be considered presumptuous in saying that to me as a casual onlooker it appears that both sides shoot wide of the mark.

Personally I believe that either the Democratic or the Republican candidate is well qualified to perform the actual administrative work of a supervisor, and if the choice of that officer involved purely local affairs, that it would make little difference which one was elected. But the fact of the matter is that the real and outstanding value of a supervisor to his town lies not in his purely local work, but in his ability to accomplish things for his town in and with the board of supervisors of the county.

The town of Saugerties is but one political sub-division of the county. In purely local matters it governs itself through the town board. In larger matters it is ruled by the legislative body of the county, which is the board of supervisors; and in that body it has but one vote. In these matters, therefore, it fares not as the local supervisor decides, but as the board of supervisors by majority vote decides. The ability of a supervisor to accomplish things for his town, therefore, depends upon his ability to swing a majority of the supervisors of the county his way, and the ability to swing the other supervisors his way depends almost wholly upon that one thing which politicians seem afraid to mention in the present campaign above a whisper—politics. If a supervisor is of the same political faith as a majority of the supervisors in the board, his town fares well and shares in all of the good things at the board's disposal. If he is politically aligned with the lonesome minority, his town is ipso facto a political Lazarus receiving only the crumbs which fall from the majority's table.

There is nothing new or startling about this fact. It is as old as our government itself, because it is an incident of our system of government. It prevails in our state legislature and in congress, and it will last as long as our present form of government lasts. It thrives irrespective of the party in power, the only difference being that it is called "Party Harmony" by the party in power and "Rank Discrimination" and other more sulphurous names by the party out of power. Perhaps it ought not to be, but the fact is it is, and will probably remain until the far off day when America becomes Utopia and politicians carry harps instead of cigars.

The county of Ulster is so overwhelmingly Republican that there now is and will undoubtedly continue to be for the next few years at least a strong Republican majority in the Ulster county board of supervisors. While that majority prevails, the towns represented by Republican supervisors will feast and the towns represented by Democrats will fast. The tail always has had to continue to have very little success in wagging the dog.

The most important consideration in the present campaign is, therefore, whether the town of Saugerties in the next county legislature will be aligned with or against the majority. If we are with the majority things will run smoothly and we will get what we want and need. If we are with the minority we may not get horn lounds, but we will sell mighty few clams. The Republican candidate is sure to be with a strong majority in the board; the Democratic candidate with a hopeless and helpless minority.

Personally I like both Shults and Wells, but I vote Wells.

FIVE CHILDREN DIE WHEN TRAIN HITS SCHOOL BUS.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Waycross, Ga., Nov. 2.—Five children were killed, two fatally injured and a score more hurt when Atlantic Coast Line passenger train No. 81, New Orleans to Jacksonville, struck a bus load of school children near Nahunta, Georgia, early.

The injured children brought here, two of them dying in the Atlantic Coast Line Hospital.

If You Want Solitude

Anyone searching for solitude should go to Tristan da Cunha, a very lovely island which is a six-day trip by steamer from Cape Town, South Africa. That statement should be modified to say a six-day trip when steamers run, but it is often many months before a ship calls at this little south Atlantic island. The inhabitants, few in number, would starve were it not for occasional supplies, which are brought ashore with great difficulty, owing to the surf.

Dish in Ancient Times

In ancient Egypt, and also in Judea, guests at the table handed their food with their fingers. The same is the case in modern Egypt. Each person breaks off a small piece of bread, dips it in the dish, and then covers it to his mouth, together with a small portion of the meat or other contents of the dish. To pick out a delicate morsel and hand it to a friend is esteemed a compliment, and to refuse such an offering is contrary to good manners.

In Praise of Learning

Learning makes young men temperate, is the comfort of old age, standing for wealth with a city and serving as an ornament to riches.—Cicero.

Significant Words

The heaviest words in our language are the two briefest ones, yet and so. One stands for the surrender of the will, the other for denial; one for gratification, the other for character.—Theodore T. Munger.

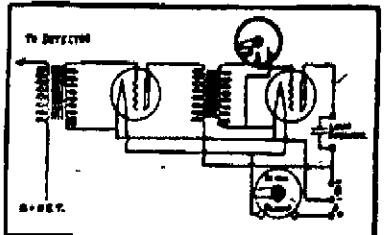

Doing Away With Plugs and Jacks

Elimination of Attachments Is Ridding Receivers of Trouble Makers.

The general use of multi-tube receivers and superpower broadcasting stations has done much to eliminate the old system of using several jacks in a radio set. The latest receivers are using only one jack at the most, to which the loud speaker can be connected. Many of them are eliminating all jacks and providing binding posts in the rear of the set for the loud-speaker connections.

The elimination of plugs and jacks is ridding receivers of two very common sources of trouble.

Any receiver is better off without jacks, for that matter. Wiring is greatly simplified, capacity of the wiring is reduced, and the front panel is improved in appearance. The use of jacks where any audio transformer is used with high primary impedance, such as the high-quality, low-ratio audio transformers that are becoming more and more popular, is hazardous.

500,000 Ohm Variable Resistance to Prevent Noisy Reception.

The sudden surge of current caused by the opening or closing of a jack circuit is likely to burn out fine wire used in winding the transformer core.

Volume Must Be Controlled.

A serious problem presents itself however, when jacks are eliminated. The volume of the receiver must be controlled. If the rheostats are turned low, volume will be reduced, but at the expense of clarity. If turned too low, distortion results. Partially detuning the receiver, with the tubes operating at their most efficient setting of the rheostats is often done. In this day of congested broadcasting, however, such a procedure will result in interference between stations. Engineers have been working to devise means of softening the tone without destroying quality. Resistances across the primary and secondary windings of transformers are sometimes used, as well as a bank of fixed resistances in series with the output of the last tube, proving entirely satisfactory.

Best tone quality is maintained with a fixed resistance across the secondary of the transformer, and volume controlled by using a variable center contact like a potentiometer, connecting this contact to the grid of the next tube. Approximately 500,000 ohms puts the proper load on the transformer for best results, while the variable arm must have perfectly smooth regulation from zero to the maximum resistance.

Three Terminals.

Such a resistance is the centralab modulator. This is supplied with three terminals, precisely like a potentiometer except that the resistance is a graphite ring upon which a metal disc is pressed to make contact. All of the rubbing and wear comes between the metal disc and pressure arm which does not make the electrical contact, and therefore cannot cause noise even after long service. The resistance strip remains unharmed by the pressure contact of the disc, whereas the usual variable resistance wears quickly from the direct friction of the contact arm on the resistance.

When connected in an audio amplifying circuit, as shown by the accompanying diagram, the modulator gives noiseless adjustment to any desired tone volume from a whisper to maximum loudness, with improved quality of reproduction.

How to Prevent Mistakes in Connecting Your Set

To prevent mistakes when connecting up a set from a diagram start at the antenna binding post and connect it to the instrument. When this connection has been completed draw over that connection with a colored pencil. This system will show that that connection is complete. Then from the other terminal of the same instrument connect a wire to the next instrument. Cover this connection with a colored pencil line, and do the same thing with every line. When all the connections are redrawn in colored pencil it will show that everything is completed and that it has been done correctly.

Modern Vacuum Tubes Have Coated Filaments

The effective operation of any vacuum tube is not governed by the brilliancy of the filament. As a matter of fact, one should never use the brilliancy of the filament as an indicator that the tube is working properly. Modern vacuum tubes have a coating placed over the filament which greatly increases the electron emission. The filament merely serves as a heater to generate the emission of electrons. One will find that with tubes using the coated filament the life of the tubes is not governed by the filament burning out, but by the loss or deterioration of the coating on the filament. When this happens the tubes will remain lit, but no signals will be heard.

Communities Score Successes

While Old Mother Nature with her magic paint brush is busy painting new scenes along the highways of beautiful Ulster county, the people of the county are swinging themselves around to the evening meetings in the various communities. The first shot fired at Lake Katrine by the Flatbush-Lake Katrine Farm and Home Bureau has been heard 'round the county, other communities have rallied to the firing line and the battle is on. The thickest of the fight seems to center around the "Early Onions and Rhode Island Reds," with the bean bags scoring a close second.

The seating capacity of the Shawangunk community hall was taxed to the limit on Thursday evening and every one present had evidently "packed up his troubles in an old kit bag" somewhere before leaving home. And how they did sing. If any community in Ulster county wants to know the secret of a first-class, old fashioned community sing, ask Shawangunk. Five stars twinkled brightly at Shawangunk that night even though the harvest moon was slightly obscured, and the Asbury 4-H Canning Club girls did themselves proud in spite of difficulties. Of course, there were games and eats and plenty of each.

Out into a beautiful Fairland, "a universe of sky and snow," the people of Ulster Park went to their community meeting on Friday evening. And to a capacity house the exponents of the "Onions and Reds" made merry until all too soon the curtain rang down. Yet, there were ice cream and cake, furnished by the Ladies' Aid, a male quartet sang, short talks were given and then games.

New Paltz is the next to step into the lime light. From what news can be gleaned from that quarter the New Paltz Farm and Home Bureau has a big surprise in store for everybody. The Grange Hall is the place, Wednesday, November 4, 8 o'clock is the time. And everybody is going.

Besides a wife he is survived by a sister in Brooklyn.

Early Saturday evening an alarm of fire was turned in from Box 124 for a truck on fire on Tammany street. The truck was quite badly damaged. It was owned by a Poughkeepsie man and driven by John Ewel of this city. Start's garage on Railroad avenue sent the wrecker to the scene to remove the truck and in towing it down the Wyckoff Place hill the burned truck broke loose and crashed into the front porch of the home of John E. Fraser at No. 191 Foxhall avenue, damaging the porch considerably.

Grid Honors Go To Middle West

Victories of Illinois and Michigan Swing Football Prestige to Middle West—Michigan Touted as Greatest Team and Grange, Greatest Back of All Time.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Nov. 2.—Intersectional football prestige swung automatically from the east to the middle west over the week end as a result of the stunning victories of Illinois and Michigan over Pennsylvania and the Navy respectively. They were victories so decisive as to leave no doubt as to the superiority of the victors and in consequence, the present superiority of the section the victors represented.

Michigan took its place at the head of the national list by beating the Navy 54 to 0. There remain other teams to dispute the Wolverine's spot at the pace but most of those lost no inconsiderable caste in Saturday's games.

Dartmouth, for example, remained unbeaten but was more than fortunate in disposing of Brown. Cornell had to make use of a last minute rally to get the winning score over Columbia. Washington in the far west kept its slate unsullied by taking over Washington State and was one of the few that didn't lose prestige on Saturday. Alabama and Tulane, in the south, also continued to win, and so did Missouri in the valley conference debate. Its decision over Ames just about washing up the entire situation out that way. Missouri and Tulane, by the way, have played each other a tie game, which might mean everything or nothing.

Syracuse was another undefeated team that managed to survive, although the Orange was sorely oppressed by Penn State. Iowa and W. and J. likewise remained in the chase, but none of those immediately mentioned seems to have Michigan's all around class. The Wolverine had been touted as the greatest team in the country and now some of the boys are beginning to believe it.

The Navy certainly will string along with this idea. They thought they had a real football team at Annapolis. So did a lot of supposedly well informed critics. Yet the Midshipmen were beaten twice as badly as was Pennsylvania by Illinois, which, in truth, was badly enough.

This last was a personally conducted affair by Red Grange and today many students of football form were hailing him as the greatest back of all time. Thorpe, Mahan, Coy, Gipp, Heston, et al., not barred.

There was no two ways about it, not only individual but team honors rested with the middle west today. In spite of the fact that that section had fared none too well in the early intersectional meetings with the east. The latter still holds the preponderance of victories but the middle west claims the decisions of real distinction.

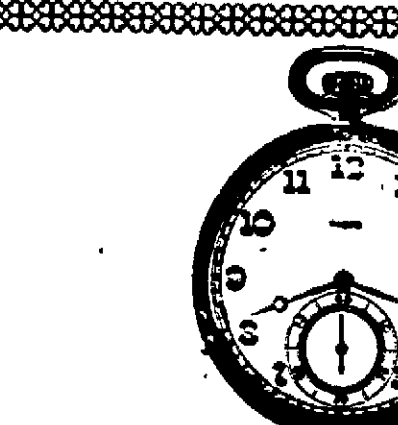

Speaking of undefeated teams, which weren't, Boston College and Colgate remained in the lists but neither really rates national recognition. This is true because Boston College has played only one or two real games while Colgate was tied by Lafayette, which lost to W. and J., which played a scoreless tie with Carnegie Tech, which lost to Pittsburgh.

Town Has Many Churches

Many church buildings are to be found in the towns of Elliptical, Wales. It is a town of about 4,000 inhabitants, with a mayor and corporation, and boasts 14 houses of worship. Two alone would accommodate every church-going man, woman and child in the place, leaving the others without a single worshiper.

It may have been a previous possession when originally bought, but today it is probably far below the quality standard maintained in the things you buy for personal use. Why not surprise your loved ones with a gift of a beautiful new up-to-date watch? No other gift will be more appreciated. Our exhibit of superb creations in watches is complete with the very latest models. All standard makes. Come in and see them. Shown in a range of designs and values—for men, women, boys and girls.

Banish Depression
Death should not depress us; for if we brood on death we make a depressing thing of life. The final earthly chapter is after all, a common, natural, and general experience. Look at it in the right light, the thought should inspire us, for who knows what great wonders may lie immediately beyond?—Exchange.

You'll Love Harold! "Harold Lamb," the Freshman, who dreamed of Gridiron Glory and Campus Conquests—and went to college loaded down with tennis racquets and ukuleles and misplaced ideas of how to be popular—and was only the laughing stock, until he met a girl, the girl who discovered the heart that beat beneath the funny sweater and hid the real boy within!
There is more than laughter in "The Freshman"! There are roars of joy! And screams of delight! And speed and suspense and drama to make you shout with excitement! And a tear or two—the kind that makes you happy! It's the Brightest Twinkle of the Screen's Biggest Star.

Road Race on Thanksgiving Day

The Thanksgiving Day road race which will be held under the auspices of the local Y. M. C. A., will be open to all runners of the city who are over 12 years of age. In order that the small boy may have a chance with his larger brother all boys entering will be grouped in four different weight divisions and those of every division except the lightest handicapped a certain amount of time.

This handicapping worked very successful last Thanksgiving Day when the race was won by Carl Fuchsle who overcame a handicap of one and one-half minutes while John Scanlon overcame a handicap of three minutes and took second place. Third place was taken by Henry Bittner who started without a handicap.

Twenty seven runners took part last time in the four weight classes. Plans for this season include a larger number of runners. A set of Y. M. C. A. medals (gold, silver and bronze) will be awarded those taking first, second and third places while bronze medals will be given for first place in each weight classification. These make a total of 15 prizes for this event.

Additional information will be furnished by physical director Bailey of the "Y" on application.

"Miss Apple"

Claudia Dell, of New York, was awarded the silver cup as "Miss Apple of 1925." And the cup was filled with choice apples for Claudia and a few of her friends.
